Biological determinism suggests that genetic and physiological factors influence criminal behavior, implying that some individuals may be predisposed to commit crimes due to their biological makeup. What are the key differences between classical and positivist criminology? Classical criminology emphasizes free will and rational choice, advocating punishment as a deterrent, while positivist criminology focuses on scientific analysis of biological, psychological, and social factors influencing criminal behavior. 5 What are the primary methods used to measure crime rates? Here are some examples: Question 1: Describe the social learning theory and its explanation for criminal behavior. Model Answer: The social learning theory posits that criminal behavior is learned through interactions with others, particularly within peer groups and family. It suggests that individuals acquire attitudes, techniques, and motivations for crime via reinforcement and modeling. For example, a person exposed to delinquent peers may adopt similar behaviors through Criminology Exam Questions And Answers 7 observation and imitation, reinforced by peer approval or rewards.
