what insights can we gain from the rituals actions and interactions around death and the afterlife this edited collection offers a multidisciplinary perspective on how individuals and collectives do death and interact with the dead through case studies of singaporean chinese religion communities the authors bring a myriad of knowledge and experience from eight different but interconnected disciplines to examine map document and theorise the practices of death and the afterlife heritage here is not just a point of nostalgia or historical snapshot but becomes a significant resource for the shaping of and grappling with diasporic and contemporary singaporean chinese identities this edited collection moves beyond western sites of knowledge by offering a series of multidisciplinary perspectives on death practices drawn from research with individuals groups and organisations that identify themselves as singaporean chinese and the spaces and places often referred to as chinese singapore this collection will appeal to a wide and diverse audience of scholars students and practitioners in particular key target audiences would include but are not limited to those interested in asia particularly chinese studies and chinese migrant diasporic communities and scholars in sociology history anthropology and social cultural geography beginning with the claim that the popularization of buddhism in the medieval period was a phenomenon of visual culture explaining pictures reexamines the history and historiography of medieval japanese buddhism with theoretical sophistication and a full appreciation of the power of imagery to convey and control religious meaning it investigates a range of aspects of etoki including the particularly active role of itinerant nuns whose performances were especially edifying to female audiences as well as the visual hagiography of the reputed founder of japanese buddhism the pictorial projections of buddhist paradise and hell and the explanation through visual imagery of sacred mountains explaining pictures is the first book length study in english devoted to the phenomenon of buddhist art as religious propaganda and pictorial storytelling as a form of popular culture in medieval japan a truly interdisciplinary study it suggests fruitful avenues of discussion between art historians and historians of japanese buddhism scholars and students with an interest in japanese buddhism art and social and cultural history will find its examination of significant issues fresh and stimulating it will also find an appreciative audience among those concerned with the relationship between art and religion the mechanics of proselytization and asian visual culture innumerable studies have appeared in recent decades about practically every aspect of women s lives in western societies the few such works on buddhism have been quite limited in scope in the power of denial bernard faure takes an important step toward redressing this situation by boldly asking does buddhism offer women liberation or limitation continuing the innovative exploration of sexuality in buddhism he began in the red thread here he moves from his earlier focus on male monastic sexuality to buddhist conceptions of women and constructions of gender faure argues that buddhism is neither as sexist nor as egalitarian as is usually thought above all he asserts the study of buddhism through the gender lens leads us to question what we uncritically call buddhism in the singular faure challenges the conventional view that the history of women in buddhism is a linear narrative of progress from oppression to liberation examining buddhist discourse on gender in traditions such as that of japan he shows that patriarchy indeed misogyny has long been central to buddhism but women were not always silent passive victims faure points to the central role not only of nuns and mothers and wives of monks but of female mediums and courtesans whose colorful relations with buddhist monks he considers in particular ultimately faure concludes that while buddhism is in practice relentlessly misogynist as far as misogynist discourses go it is one of the most flexible and open to contradiction and he suggests unyielding in depth examination can help revitalize buddhism s deeper more ancient egalitarianism and thus subvert its existing gender hierarchy this groundbreaking book offers a fresh comprehensive understanding of what buddhism has to say about gender and of what this really says about buddhism singular or plural these translations of the precious scroll of the three lives of mulian and woman huang recites the diamond sutra are late nineteenth century examples of baojuan literally precious scrolls a chinese folk genre featuring alternating verse and prose that was used by monks to illustrate religious precepts for lay listeners they represent only two of numerous versions composed in a variety of genres of these legends which were once popular all over china while the seeds of the mulian legend in which a man rescues his mother from hell can be found in indian buddhist texts the story of woman huang who seeks her own salvation appears to be indigenous to china with their graphic portrayals of the underworld dramatization of buddhist beliefs about death salvation and rebirth and frank discussion of women s responsibility for sin these texts provide detailed and powerful descriptions of popular religious beliefs and practices in late imperial china especially as they relate to women how do people in japan conceive of life after death although many japanese today claim that on their archipelago there has never been much interest in this topic the evidence presented here shows otherwise documenting a rich range of historical as well as contemporary scenarios that present life as going on after death these essays also show individuals and whole communities acting on the belief that the line between the living and the dead is porous and that it makes sense even now to practice the life one will have after becoming dead they thus not only bring forward aspects of japan obscured until now but also can contribute to our own current discussions of life dying and death
